State's Worst Traffic Year

Arkansas' increase in highway deaths for the first nine months of 1941 was the largest in America, the National Safety Council reports. Through September Arkansas reported 344 fatalities, against 216 for the same period last year — a gain of 59 per cent.

Old Grid Rivals Hope, Prescott to Play Friday

Many Local Fans Expected to Attend Game at Prescott

The Bobcats, coaches, student managers and hundreds of local football fans will leave for Prescott late Friday afternoon where the Hope team will tangle with the Prescott Curly Wolves.

It will be the first time in several years that the Bobcats have played on the Prescott field as the games have been played here.

Beginning way back when — the Wolves and Bobcats have clashed annually and are perhaps the oldest rivals in this part of the state. Recollections of the two teams although keen have been on better terms the last few years.

The teams are more evenly matched than at any other time in the past 12 years and the Wolves are especially gunning for Hope because they have not won a game from the Bobcats since Foy Hammons took over here in 1934. The Bobcats will be after their eighth straight win over Prescott.

Also the Bobcats will be after their third win of the season, the Wolves have a single victory. On paper Hope is given a slight edge for the first time this season. However, local fans will recall, anything can happen when the two teams meet and Prescott always puts up a stiff fight against the Bobcats.

Prescott is planning big doings and has designated the game as homecoming. Crowning of a queen will precede the contest.

From Coaches Foy Hammons and Bill Brasher come reports that the Bobcats are in fair shape considering their 31-0 defeat at the hands of Blytheville last week-end. Prescott suffered a 21-0 defeat at the hands of Arkadelphia.

Game time is called for 8 o'clock. Many local fans are expected to attend.

Women See Danger in Installment Curb

RICHMOND, Va. — (AP) — Government restrictions on installment buying may be working against the defense effort, the Richmond Housewives' League warned.

Mrs. A. Milton Eike, presenting a resolution, pointed out that women are so often called upon to do national defense work that home labor saving devices such as washing machines and vacuum-cleaners are needed more than ever to allow housewives the extra time.

Why the Taster Swishes

NEW YORK — (AP) — There's an important reason why wine tasters swirl the liquid in their glass before sniffing it to determine bouquet, according to Dr. A. J. Liebmam, head of the technical department of a large distillery. Swirling deposits a light film around the edge of the glass, and the taster sniffs the wine-laden fumes as they arise.

Interesting Islands

The seven seas are full of a large number of islands, some larger than states or countries; others smaller than a schoolyard. You probably won't be cast adrift on any of these, but if you were, how much would you know about them?

1. Which is the larger, Greenland or Australia?
2. What are the four countries on the island of Borneo, and to what nation does each belong?
3. How many islands are there in the Philippines; in the Azores?
4. Madagascar and Sumatra are shaped somewhat similarly. Where are they and who owns them?
5. What is another name for Papua, and what nations own it?

U. S. Missions Aid British in Iran and Iraq

Ankara Sources Hint at Possible New Drive on Continent

ANKARA, Turkey — (AP) — Britain was reported Friday to be steadily augmenting her military power in Iran, bordering the Russian Caucasus, with stream of fresh troops from the Empire and American made tanks and planes and the help of two U. S. missions in the Middle East.

The American delegation is expected to bolster not only transportation and organization but to manage repair and supply for American made planes. Transportation and the unloading situation at the head of the Persian Gulf, intermediate link in the route to Iran, Iraq and Caucasus, was said to be vastly improved but was still far from satisfactory.

Britain is steadily building up strength both in Iran and Iraq although details of the movement of forces into Iran are lacking here in Ankara, perhaps the Middle East's best situated observation post.

The British Middle East reaches up to the Caucasus, now under German threat, but British preparations may be pointed in other directions beside the junction with the Russians. There also came fresh word of German military preparations in Bulgaria.

"The Russian airforce still has pools of planes far behind the lines including one in the Caucasus containing upwards of 700 aircraft, according to military observers who arrived Friday from Kuibyshev."

Legion Plans Feed Monday

To Entertain Members Employed on SPG Project

Members of the Leslie Huddleston post of the American Legion will entertain all ex-service men now employed on the Southwestern Proving Ground project Monday night at 8 o'clock.

The entertainment committee announced that several hundred ex-service men were employed on the project, and would be entertained with a free feed at the Fair park here.

All SPG employees who are American Legion members and local legionnaires are urged to attend.

Deer Season to Open Nov. 11

Resident License $1.50, But $25 for Non-Residents

The deer season opens Tuesday, November 11, and remains open for five days, Lester Wade, Hempstead county game warden, said Friday.

Hunters are permitted to kill one buck per season. License for Arkansas residents costs $1.50, while the fee for a non-resident license is $25.

1941 Rainfall May Set Record for All Time

51.27 Inches in 10 Months, Against 42.52 for 60-Year Average

By GEORGE W. WARE
University of Arkansas
Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station, Hope, Ark.

Next to the Southwestern Proving Ground and war, the weather remains the most important topic of conversation in Hempstead county.

The year 1941 is remembered as very wet. In fact, the rainfall which totaled 62.61 inches in 1941 was the greatest in more than a decade, far exceeding the 60-year annual average of 51.37 inches for Hope. The greatest annual rainfall on record was in 1892, when the official recorder reported 73.45 inches for that year; and the least in 1896, when only 29.20 inches fell.

What about 1941? To date it has approximate a record breaker, 51.27 inches falling during the first 10 months.

The 60-year average rainfall record, and that for 1941 are compared to 1941 in the table below.

Month	1941	1940	60-Year Average

4-Mile Leaps Are Easier

Girl Parachutist Gets Panicky on Subway

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK — Marie McMillin makes her living "falling down the sky" with serene faith that she will never be killed in a parachute jump.

She has made 296 jumps—one from a distance of 24,800 feet to test what she calls a world altitude record for women. And the "queen of the parachute jumpers" expects to leap hundreds of times more and "live to a ripe old age."

"I am not afraid because I have faith, she told me with a serene look in her deep blue eyes. "I have faith in myself, faith in my chute and in real faith in God. He gives me the strength to go up, the courage to leap and the knowledge of what to do. After I jump He says to me, 'Now, Marie, it's up to you. Pull your own ripcord.' He has never let me down and He never will."

"No parachute jumper needs to be killed. Those who are killed are careless, or use poor equipment. I always jump in a United States Department of Commerce registered parachute. It has two chutes on the same harness—one on the chest and one on the back. I never heard of both failing to open. Marie has one great ambition. She wants to help organize and train, under government supervision, a Parachute Battalion of Nurses. (Dressed in black and wearing black parachutes) could be dropped behind the lines to do their work, and that in national emergencies of fire and flood they would also be useful. She wrote Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of her plan and says the project is now in the hands of Alma C. Haupt, Nursing Consultant of the Health and Medical Committee which works under the direction of the office of Defense Health and Welfare Services.

The queen of the parachute jumpers was an $18 a week clerk in a Columbus, Ohio, hotel—a young widow with a two-year-old daughter to support—when she made her first jump on June 8, 1930. A newspaper reporter got her the job with a $500 fee because she said she was "bound to go to the top in some profession" and would "jump out of a skyscraper" if she could get the money to educate little Freemann. She went up after 15 minutes of instruction, which her instructor ended by saying, "Marie, remember the airplane is really coming back minus one passenger. That passenger (Continued on page four)

1918—ARMISTICE DAY—1941

He Kept the Faith of 23 Years

Presumably he has gone to meet the dead heroes of the Argonne and of Chateau-Thierry, for when the United States Navy announced the 45 survivors of the Reuben James, the name of this stalwart was not among them. But he will be remembered. On Armistice Day Americans do homage to him, and to the myriad others who have died that Freedom might live. You are not forgotten, sailor of the U. S. S. Reuben James, on this Armistice Day, 1941. Nor will you be forgotten.

Won't Parley With Russians

Finnish Officials Say Peace Talk Misinterpreted

HELSINKI — (AP) — The official Finnish radio has circulated abroad an important statement of aims which says that Finland's war with Russia will be ended "as soon as the threat of renewed attacks has been removed and the frontiers made secure."

A broadcast implied that Finland would quit fighting, once that is achieved, leaving to peace conference of the great powers, sometime in the future, final determination of the new boundaries.

Interpreting a reference to the peace conference authorized Finnish sources said this in no way implied negotiation with Soviet Russia.

(A check in Helsinki led to revision of an earlier version which quoted the Finland radio as saying that military operations were drawing to close as far as the country is concerned.)

SPG Payroll Is $190,000

More Than 5,000 Employees Paid Here Friday

Payroll disbursement at the Southwestern Proving Ground Friday will run over $190,000 as the W. E. Callahan Construction Company, contractors for the Ordnance Plant construction, pays approximately 5,000 employees for a week's work.

This figure includes pay for administrative and field employees of the construction company but does not cover the salary of employees of the Ordnance Plant nor the Architect-Engineer's firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergren.

These two organizations are paid semi-monthly. The Constructing Quartermaster civilian personnel, which numbers slightly over 350 were paid in excess of $22,000 for the semi-monthly period just ended.

Says French Plotters Caught

Germans Still Trying to Stop Terrorism

VICHY — (AP) — The arrest of an alleged terrorist plotters said responsible for the assassination of Lt. Col. Paul Hotz, German commander at Nantes, was announced Friday by police.

They declared too, that they were close on the trail of another group which planned the assassination of Dr. Han Gottfried Reimers, German military lawyer at Bordeaux, October 21.

One hundred French hostages held at Nantes and Bordeaux were executed last month in reprisal for the killings and 100 more were held. Some arrests were said to have been made as far away as Paris where police said they found a cache of terrorist equipment during a house to house search.

Legion Sponsors Meeting 2 o'Clock Sunday Afternoon

The Leslie Huddleston Post of the American Legion will hold an out-post Armistice Day program at Sweet Home church at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Lester Wade announced Friday for the Hempstead county Legion organization.

A good program of speaking will be arranged.

The Sweet Home church is on State Highway 24 (Blytheville-Prescott), and all legionnaires and the public are invited to attend this program.

To Remove U. S. Men From China

President Indicates Marines May Be Withdrawn

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt Friday said that the government was considering withdrawal of American marines from Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai, China.

Roosevelt told a press conference that he did not know when a decision would be reached and declined to elaborate on the statement. He did say in answer to a question that he had been no discussion between Japan and the U. S. at any time on the presence of American marines in China.

While the President gave no interpretation of the proposed withdrawal of marines there has been an opinion in war and navy circles for some time that American military forces in China should be increased or withdrawn entirely. Latest Navy records show a total of 1,500 marines in China, and that the forces are almost entirely surrounded by Japanese-occupied China.

Asserts Weight of Own Crimes Will Whip Them

Tells Russians That Hitler Can't Last More Than a Year

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Joseph Stalin Friday gave Adolf Hitler "may-be a year" before "Hitlerite Germany must burst under the weight of her own crimes" in an address on the 24th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

"All Russia is a single fighting camp with inexhaustible supplies of manpower," he said, adding that the Germans, counting on the Red army to crack after the first blow was "badly miscalculated."

The speech was delivered before a military review in Red Square. Stalin contrasted the Russia of today with that of the October revolution when Russia was stripped of the Ukraine, the Caucasus, central Asia, Urals, Siberia and the Far East and "had neither allies armies nor arms and lacked bread and clothing."

No Russian Shortage

"Today," he said, "Russia has not a serious shortage in either food, arms or clothing, while reserves of manpower are inexhaustible and she has an army, a navy, allies and the sympathy and support of all people of Europe who have fallen under the yoke of Fascism."

"In the face of this the Nazis face sure disaster."

Germany is bleeding to death and her resources are giving out. The German invaders are straining their last forces. There is no doubt that Germany cannot sustain such a strain for any long time. Another few months, a half year or maybe a year and Hitlerite Germany must burst under the weight of its own crimes," Stalin said.

Disrupting Nazis

The speech, broadcast over the Moscow radio, was addressed to "workers, soldiers, sailors, farmers and brother and sisters in the rear of the enemy who has fallen temporarily under the yoke of the Germans."

"Our glorious men and women and guerrillas are disrupting the rear of the German invaders," he said.

"On behalf of the Soviet government and our Bolshevik party I am greeting and congratulating you on the great Socialist October revolution."

"Today we have to celebrate the anniversary in difficult conditions—we have temporarily lost a number of regions."

"The enemy has appeared before the gates of Leningrad and Moscow. The enemy calculated that after the first blow our army would be dispersed and that our country would be forced to her knees."

"But the enemy badly miscalculated. Despite temporary reserves the army and navy are battling off attacks along the whole front, inflicting heavy losses on him—while our whole country has organized itself as a single fighting camp with an order jointly to rout the invaders," Stalin said.

By the Associated Press

A slashing Russian counter offensive was reported Friday to be throwing the Germans back in two sectors northwest of Moscow.

Informed quarters in London said USSR counter offensives were gathering momentum in the Volokolansk sector, 65 miles northwest of Moscow and might soon completely reopen Moscow-Leningrad communications and relieve the siege situation at Leningrad.

In the northwest sector about Kalinin in swift Red army mechanized units were reported to be smashing hard at Nazi forward positions. K. tin, scene of some of the bloodiest fighting recently, lies on the railway line between the two cities.

Soviet advisers said the Russians had already captured secondary rail lines in the Kalinin area. Front line dispatches said Red troops, cavalry, artillery and planes battered the Germans into retreat, storming and capturing position after position and continuing the advance.

German dive bombers and artillery began an attempt to crash the Soviet assault. But the Germans are admitting their troops were having a tough time amid Soviet steel and concrete mountain casements in the Crimea and admitted being halted entirely on the Moscow drive.

Military commentators said weather on the Moscow front was such that any large scale operation, particularly a direct assault against the capital would be futile.

U. D. C. Meeting Is Held at Home of State Officer
The November meeting of the Pat Cleburne chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was held at the home of Mrs. H. C. Whitworth, third vice-president of the state organization, on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. H. J. Garrett, president of the chapter, opened the meeting with the impressive ritual consisting of the salute to the Confederate flag, the saying of the chapter prayer, and the singing of Robert E. Lee's favorite hymn.

Following the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. Pat Casey, a business session was held. Mrs. Garrett led the discussion of several important items and announced that Miss Daisy Dorothy Heard has been named director of the Children of the Confederacy.

As program chairman for the afternoon, Mrs. J. A. Henry introduced the speakers on her program. Mrs. George T. Crews, one of the chapter's delegates to the state convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy held recently in Pine Bluff, gave a most interesting resume of the outstanding events of the state meeting. Mrs. Crews asserted that the state organization purchased Defense bonds amounting to $2500.

Other highlights of the convention were discussed by Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. J. J. Battle, president of the Fulton chapter, and Mrs. H. C. Whitworth, who was elected third vice president.

"David Owen Dodd" was the subject of the program for the afternoon. Miss Maggie Bell read an original letter written to a Washington resident relating the tragic story of Arkansas' boy martyr.

Miss Heard discussed incidents leading to the death of David O. Dodd and told of a Federal soldiers' version of young Dodd's death. In closing the program Mrs. J. A. Henry described the national cemetery at Vicksburg, Miss.

During the tea hour the hostesses, Mrs. Whitworth, Mrs. Sid Reed, and Mrs. J. E. Schooley, served delicious pie with coffee.

Mrs. J. J. Battle Petes Miss Haynes at the Diamond
Mrs. J. J. Battle of Fulton was hostess at a pretty breakfast honoring Miss Mary Haynes, fiancée of Richard M. Thompson, on Friday morning in the private dining room of the Diamond cafe.

The table held as a central decoration a modern arrangement of fall garden flowers. A lovely gift marked the place of the honoree.

Mrs. R. E. Henderson, Mrs. Joe Black Are Club Hostesses
Members of the Cosmopolitan club met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Henderson Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Joe Black was associate hostess.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. R. L. Brouch. She announced that the club will have a Christmas party and tree in December.

A most interesting and instructive program was presented by Mrs. Lammey Cox. As her topic was on "Central America and the West Indies" countries they were discussed. Mrs. Henderson's subject was "Guatemala" and Mrs. Black's "Cuba."

In closing her program, Mrs. Cox told interesting facts about Panama. A social hour was enjoyed following the program. The hostesses served a delectable salad course with coffee to 18 members.

FOR THE LOVE OF PETE!

THE STORY: Where is Pete Laird, hero of State's opening game with California? His sweetheart, Anne Humphrey, his team captain and best friend George Landers, his coach Dinty Dugan, and his alumni, are waiting at the hotel for him. "They do not know that Hollywood star Stephanie Stevens asked Pete to meet her after the game, but they soon learn that the two of them were in an automobile crash in which Stephanie's chauffeur was killed. Pete, who came out with the story, puzzled and hurt, Anne takes a train back to State without seeing Pete, whose head is turned by Stephanie's beautiful countenance. Her kiss, her invitation to a party at her home, Stephanie's conversation with manager Larry Winship, reveals that she has attached herself to Pete only for his publicity value.

ALONE WITH STEPHANIE

CHAPTER IV

GLASSES tinkled and conversation buzzed as Pete Laird and Sterling Rand walked down the stairs to Stephanie Stevens' recreation room. A sudden hush fell over the guests as they descended.

Verbose Larry Winship stepped forward. "Good people!"—he orated like an overinflated ward-heeler—"may I present to you America's greatest sports figure—the one, the only, the incomparable Pete Laird!"

"Hear, hear!" shouted the guests. Whistles and cheers filled the room. Pete felt himself reddening. Stephanie stepped forward. She wore a sleek black gown that nuzzled her slumping figure.

Guests stepped forward eagerly to shake Pete's hand and utter some choice bit of adulation. There were familiar names and faces in that crowd—important figures in the movie industry. It seemed fantastic to be the center of attraction in such a gathering. Yet Pete was fairly mobbed.

Someone shoved a Scotch and soda in his hand. He drank it hurriedly in an attempt to relieve the tension. More drinks followed. The rest of the evening was a rushing panorama that Pete remembered only hazily. More drinks, too many drinks, and suddenly he realized the room was empty and he and Stephanie were alone.

Light-headed, exhilarated, he sat next to her on the divan. "You've had quite a day, darling," she said tenderly. "Four touchdowns in the afternoon, an auto accident for dinner, and you captivate the movie colony in the evening."

"And you?" he whispered, drawing closer. "I'm afraid I'm more than captivated," she said in a low voice. Her lips were only a few inches from his. He kissed her, gently at first, then with a passion that made the blood pound in his head. "Oh, darling, darling," she murmured.

"Stephanie . . . honey," he whispered, crushing her in his arms.

PETE staggered into his hotel room at 4 that morning. The liquor had left him soggy. His head ached and he was dog-tired. Throwing himself on the bed, he tried to go to sleep.

Suddenly the light flicked on, and Landers sat up in bed, rubbing his eyes. "Where've you been?" he grumbled.

"None of your business," snapped Pete.

"Oh, yes it is, brother," retorted Landers, now fully awake. "It's my business until this season's over."

He got out of bed and walked over to Pete. "Been drinking, huh?" he growled. "Not enough to leave Anne, the team and 500 alumni in the lurch! Sure, that's fine! Double-cross the whole bunch for some Hollywood tramp. . . ."

Pete bolted out of bed. "Say that again, and I'll tear you apart!"

Landers laughed. "Why, you stew-bum. I could break you in two when you're sober. Drunk, I wouldn't dirty my hands," he sneered.

Pete tried to push Landers away but he was too tired, too dizzy. Landers grabbed his collar and pulled him close. "Listen, punk," he snarled, "I'm not going to say this again. I thought you were too smart a guy to kick away everything you have at stake. But that's your business. The team's my business, and if you pull any more funny stuff, I'll . . ."

He shoved Laird away. "G'wan to bed."

Foggily Pete tried to protest, but he could scarcely keep his eyes opened. He undressed, slumped into bed and was snoring before Landers had fallen back to sleep.

Next morning, State's squad hopped busses for the airport. Laird sat alone. The players shunned him. As the bus plodded toward the field, Pete tried to straighten out his garbled thoughts, but it was useless. Permeating everything was Stephanie—her lips, her eyes. . . .

Whirling plane motors jarred him from his musings. Two transports were waiting to carry the team east. A small crowd was standing beside the plane and when Laird stepped out they gathered around him like a swarm of bees. It was the press.

"How are you feeling today, Laird?" one asked, looking at him carefully.

"O. K."
"No injuries from the accident?"
"None."

"How long have you known Stephanie Stevens?"
"Not long—I—ah—met her a couple of years ago."

"Where?"
"In the east . . . say, what is this, fellows, a cross-examination?"

"Look—brother," said one reporter, "you're big news. Bigger'n that whole team of yours." Pete winced but the scribe continued. "You're a hotshot football player and you're in the middle of a Hollywood romance. Now isn't that something for one guy?"

LAIRD turned, walked away angrily. Reporters laughed and a few photographers snapped him. He entered the plane and sat in front of Socko Wonsoki, State's big end. "Hi, son," he offered, turning around.

"Hi," replied Wonsoki curtly. "How'd Darryl Zanuck?"

"I don't think I met him," said Pete innocently.

Dinty Dugan stepped into the plane carrying a camel's hair coat on his arm and looking like a successful Wall Street broker. "More lectures," thought Laird uncomfortably. He slumped down in his seat.

"Feeling O. K., Pete?" asked Dugan as he passed Laird's seat.

"First rate," Laird replied.

"Good," Dugan smiled with complete friendliness. "I was a little worried about you." He moved on.

That was like Dinty. He knew when not to blow. He could make a few words count.

Most of the players had traveled by air for the first time on the trip west, but they all considered themselves seasoned now. They sat back easily as the plane lifted off the ground and watched the fading landscape with the nonchalance of veterans.

Pete's thoughts returned to Stephanie. He felt a funny little ache that was new to him. Anne had never affected him that way. Was he falling in love with this incredibly lovely girl?

Dinty Dugan was wondering about that, too. He leaned across the aisle and whispered to Pat Lester. "Gee, that boy's with us. You can stop your worrying."

"Yeah," granted Lester, "that's fine. Nice of him to come, isn't it? I don't like it, coach. Seven more games to play, and the big guy falls in love with a mess of Hollywood dynamite. We haven't heard the last of that baby yet."

Large Crowds Attend Revival to Continue at Tabernacle

Speaking to the largest crowd yet to attend a week night service of the present revival campaign at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle, Evangelist Bernice Vandermere said, "We are desperately preparing for national defense, and rightly so, but in our struggle to protect our nation against invasion, and other evils connected with war and totalitarian dictatorship, we must not forget the danger of neglecting the most essential preparation of all, the preparation of the soul to stand in the presence of God in the day of Judgment."

"In these busy days, when every one seems to be working overtime, day and night, Sundays too, and when more or less prosperity has come to many it is very easy to allow one's self to be wholly taken up with the material, and fall in line with the important task . . . preparedness for eternity."

Special singing and music consumed the first forty five minutes of the program on Thursday night, with many participating. Friday night special guests in the service will include the Rev. Stephen Vandermere, husband of the evangelist, and their small daughters Marie and Lois, who will sing during the service, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Vandermere.

The revival meeting will continue through next week, with services every night, except Saturday night, at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Vandermere will speak at both the morning and evening service on Sunday.

Sunday School Lesson

God's Forgiveness Is Important
Fact in World of War, Suffering and Sin
Text: Luke 15:1-24.

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

It is fitting that the last lesson on sin and its consequences should be followed by a lesson based on the parable of the prodigal son. Here we come to repentance and faith, but sin and its consequences as well as the power that heals and restores are all well illustrated in this story.

Here, perhaps, we might face the question of what is literal and what is imaginative in Scripture. Many Bible readers do not distinguish between what is literal, and what is not literal, but is imaginative, a life. A story that is true to life in every detail, though it may not be the story of something that has actually happened just as narrated.

In this story of the father is described as "a certain man." He might be any one of thousands of fathers whose sons turned out badly. The sons, moreover, are not named, nor are we told of the town or village in which they lived, but they represent sons that have been in every generation.

Meal Planning Is Discussed by Specialist

Trained Agent Suggests Food Variety in Well Planned Budget

"What shall we have for dinner? How can I be sure that I'm feeding my family right?"

These questions, so familiar to homemakers, are being asked more and more frequently now since better nutrition has become a national defense goal, says Miss Fletcher, county home demonstration agent.

And to help nutrition leaders of Hempstead county home demonstration clubs, Mrs. J. E. McWilliams, Shover Springs, is serving as county chairman. Miss Fletcher, county home demonstration agent, offers the following pointers on meal planning prepared by Miss Mary E. Loughhead, of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

"Meal Planning," the Extension specialist in foods and nutrition says, "is quite a bit like making a dress. It's a lot easier if we have a good pattern to follow, and like a good dress pattern, we can make many changes for variety and still have everything we need."

"One of the first steps in planning wholesome means the easy way is to get acquainted with the food groups or families. Because of similarity in principal food value, foods groups themselves rather naturally as follows: (1) milk, (2) meats, eggs, cheese, (3) fruits and vegetables, (4) cereals, (5) sugars, (6) fats. These six groups eration, sons that have gone wild through foolishness or temptation, and son who have been very correct and proper but also very narrow-minded and lacking in magnanimity and kindness. We do not need to know where they lived. The value of this parable is that it is so true to life that it relates to many cases.

This is a principle we ought to bear constantly in mind as we read the Bible, which, we are apt to forget, is a book that comes out of the East with all its Eastern imagery and traditional manner of figurative speech. It is a mistake to interpret something that is figurative or symbolic as literal, but it is equally a mistake to imagine that the truth of the Bible is any less real because it is sometimes expressed in parables or in stories from life that do not have the names of particular individuals attached.

The woman who lost the piece of silver, for instance, might have been an actual woman that Jesus had in mind, or she might have been one of many women who have lost a piece of silver whom Jesus used as an example of the type who earnestly seek and find.

In the story of the prodigal son, we have all the facts concerning sin and salvation presented. Salvation does not mean that the consequences of sin are entirely removed. When the prodigal sinned he suffered, and there are sins that leave their indelible and permanent marks that cannot be removed. This does not mean that sin cannot be forgiven, nor does it mean that there cannot be spiritual restoration, even though a man might carry to the day of his death the badly consequences of sin, and though he might not be able to wipe out the effects of his sin upon others.

The great fact here is that God acts toward His human children like the good father of the parable. When men turn from their sins, He is full of forgiveness and willing to restore them to their rightful place. This is the great, important fact in a world so full of sin and suffering.

Even though men go far astray they may be sure of a Father's welcome when they return sincerely and repentant.

Bob Hope Again Starred in Comedy Role

Paulette
Goddard Co-Stars
in Hilarious
Production

Bob Hope makes a bet of four hours, you can bet more than the price of admission to the Saenger theater, that will follow will be high-speed, hilarious comedy.

Hope makes the wager in the new comedy, "Nothing But the Truth," which gambles into Saenger theater beginning Sunday with Paulette Goddard, and a comedy cast packed solid with favorite names, including Edward G. Robinson, Helen Vinson, Elaine Doocey, Glenn Anders, Mitchell, Rose Hobart and Willie Mitchell.

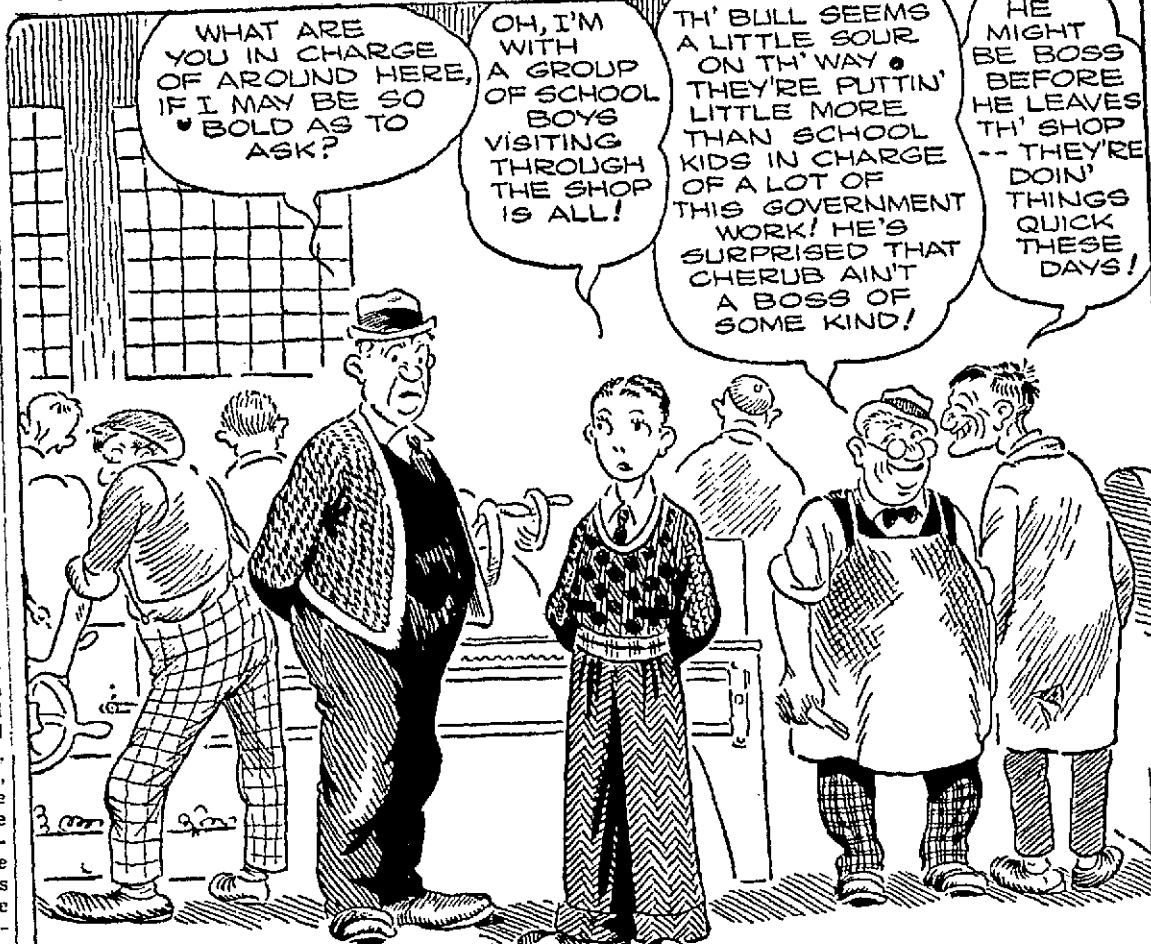

An added recommendation is that the new laugh opus was directed by Elliott Nugent, comedy-wise, one of the two previous Goddard adventures into the sphere, "The Cat and the Canary."

Right now Hope is just about tops in comedy, following sock-successes such as "Road to Zanzibar" and "Caught in the Draft." His film following has been increasing by leaps and bounds in each new picture, until now his presence as a comedian is almost unassailable. As for Paulette Goddard, the young lady has been shuttling back and forth between comedy and drama the past few seasons.

The beautiful star recently was seen as the partner in "Second Chorus," and then as the unscrupulous girl-of-the-world of "Hold Back the Dawn," which she appeared with Charles Boyer and Olivia de Havilland. In the mentioned film, Paulette went all-out in a completely dramatic, in contrast to the many comedy roles she has played, two with Hope. These roles with Hope were in "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Most Dangerous Game."

"Nothing But the Truth," which is adapted to the screen from a famous stage comedy, concerns itself with a bet made by Bob Hope, in the role of a stockbroker that he can tell the Lewis Loses Leftist Backing in C. I. O.

WASHINGTON — All kinds of motives have been ascribed to John L. Lewis for bringing the captive coal mine union shop battle to a showdown at this particular time. A frequently heard explanation charges Lewis with staging a grandstand play to capture the C. I. O. national convention in Detroit late in November, taking the C. I. O. presidency away from Phil Murray.

In this strange day and age of universal stuffed shirts and false fronts it's almost impossible to determine anyone's real motives, but men high in the councils of labor, men familiar with the strange workings of internal labor politics—as complicated a set of cross currents as ever bedeviled any political party—these men say Lewis' chances for recapturing C. I. O. leadership are practically nil for the simple reason that Lewis has lost the support of the left wing labor forces.

The original alliance between Lewis and the left wingers took form back in 1933, Lewis then believing that if the leftists had something to contribute to industrial unionism, their talents and resources should be used. Since 1933, Lewis has never indulged in red baiting, has never said one public word against the left wing in the labor movement. Other labor leaders have openly blasted at the reds from time to time, but not Lewis.

Sitdowns Started Rift
In the years right after 1933, Lewis and labor generally "sold" Roosevelt hard. Organization drives under the wage and hour law were conducted with the slogan, "Roosevelt wants you to join a union." The results were phenomenal, but by 1936 Lewis was drifting away from Roosevelt, ahead of the reds. The battle over the sit-down strikes in Detroit had come along, and Lewis supposedly told the President that if the men were shot out of the auto plants, Lewis would be in there with them, and Lewis would have to be shot out, too. Feuding between Roosevelt and Lewis as in the case of the captive coal mine dispute, is old stuff to both and it goes back more than five years.

By 1940, Lewis is supposed to have been ready to bargain with Roosevelt, trading of labor support for certain concessions to C. I. O. The deal didn't come off. Lewis then began to be undermined by his own unions—the auto workers and other great sections of the C. I. O. pledging their support to Roosevelt in spite of the stand taken by Lewis. He then believed the issue was whether Roosevelt was to head the labor movement in America, or whether a man from labor's ranks was to lead.

Murray a Middle-Roader
In the 1940 election, Lewis lost on that issue, but in spite of that, at the C. I. O. national convention only a few weeks later, Lewis was the dominating figure. His basic strength was his United Mine Workers' union, but his support came from the left wing unions and marginal groups among the steel and auto workers. Sidney Hillman, who had supported Roosevelt all through this period, was a dominant figure for the conservative group. Phil Murray, taking a middle road, supporting Roosevelt but not supporting Hillman, was nominated by Lewis for the C. I. O. presidency and elected.

As the defense effort gained momentum, Lewis continued his support of the left wing unions in key strikes like those at Vultee and North American plants. Hillman, now in the government as labor adviser, and Phil Murray, loyal to Roosevelt and as a good Catholic violently anti-red, both criticized the left wing, "communist inspired" strikes.

That was the lineup right up to the fine summer day when Germany invaded Russia. Almost immediately, the left wing switched, feeling that the political content of the U. S. foreign policy issue had changed and that this was now a real anti-fascist war.

Today, the left wing labor doctrine preaches no compromise with John L. Lewis, and this doctrine is clearly

Box Marked Fragile Brings Grin to Soldiers

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

Your son or friend in the Army will be wearing a broad grin this fall when and if he gets a box marked "fragile."

He will then know that the folks at home have been thinking of him—and "saying it" with home-made treats. Chances are that he will be hoping the box contains some of those nutty, fruity rocks, a batch of black walnut fudge or pecan penuche and other familiar homespun tidbits.

Home-made treats will keep moist and travel well if they are selected carefully and packed well. Cookies and cakes rich with fat, spices, fruits and chocolate keep fresh longer than delicate white cake. Crisp cookies break easily so it is usually better to stick to the soft, waxy kind like butterscotch sticks, date bars and chocolate brownies. Fruit cake, gingerbread and cinnamon buns are good travelers. A creamy frosting makes a better than a boiled kind, unless the sending distance is short.

Select a stout cardboard or metal box with a tight-fitting lid to hold the culinary specials. Put an inch layer of crushed paper in the bottom and cover with waxed paper. Pack the confections and cookies snugly in layers with waxed paper between. Top with more crushed paper and waxed paper until the box is firm. Here are some special recipes:

Date Uggies
Cream a cup of butter until soft, add two cups dark brown sugar and beat a minute. Mix in 1/2 cup cream, 3 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup broken walnut meats, two teaspoons vanilla, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 4 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1 teaspoon soda. Mold the dough into balls, flatten quickly onto greased baking sheets. Space two inches apart. Top each with a piece of date and bake 8-10 minutes in a moderate oven (350).

Chocolate Surprises
Cream a cup butter until soft, add 2 cups sugar and beat well. Mix in 4 eggs, 1/4 cup cream, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 4 squares melted chocolate, 2 cups flour and 1/2 teaspoon baking powder. Beat 2 minutes. Pour to the thickness of an inch in baking pan fitted with waxed paper. Sprinkle with a cup broken nuts. Bake 25 minutes (350). Cut in bars, roll in confectioner's sugar.

Double Decker Fudges
Make up a batch of penuche, pour it into a shallow pan and then cover with a batch of coconut fudge. And plain chocolate fudge goes well with a creamy, vanilla flavored white fudge top. Cut in 2-inch squares, wrap each separately and pack closely.

Dates stuffed with chopped, salted peanuts and candied pineapple, and then rolled in sugar or toasted coconut are an aw-mo-seal. And figs or dates rolled around lemon flavored fondant make mighty good eating.

Ginger Cream Cookies
Cream 1/2 cup fat with 1 1/2 cups defined in the Communist Daily Worker. Where previously there had been a tendency to let Lewis go his own way on foreign policy, but to work with him on domestic issues, now the left wing leaders no longer come to see Lewis for the simple reason that they regard him as pro-fascist, but they point to three things in support of the charge that Lewis is pro-fascist and an appeaser: 1. Lewis' has made only one statement on foreign policy and that by indirection when he signed the recent London-Hoover statement opposing the Roosevelt foreign policy.

2. Lewis' daughter Katharine is a member of the America First Committee.

3. In the absence of statements giving support to the anti-fascist elements of the labor movement, Lewis' unaccountable silence is considered significant by the left wingers.

Barrymore Plays Own Music in New Drama

Tragedy, drama, comedy and symphonic music mingle in "Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day," latest of the Dr. Kildare pictures, with Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Darline Day, and Nils Asther as guest star. The medico-mystery romance opens Sunday at the Rialto theater.

The two doctors grapple with mystery in the person of Asther, playing a famous symphony conductor gradually growing deaf through a mysterious ailment. Ayres and Barrymore solve the problem, and the story discloses the youthful romance of the older physician, who loved a musician.

In the climax the symphony is conducted by Asther with a symphony orchestra. For the music, Barrymore's own composition, "Tableau Russe," recently played by a number of leading symphony orchestras, was used. Barrymore also plays portions of the work himself on the piano.

Against this story runs the counterplot of tragedy that befalls the young doctor, who is brought back to normal after the shock by the older physician.

Harold S. Buequet directed the new Kildare story, with a cast that includes Red Skelton, Alma Granger, Samuel S. Hinds, Walter Kingsford, Emma Dunn, Nell Craig, Frank Orth, George H. Reed and Marie Blake.

Dramatic highlights include a fatal motor accident, the dramatic moment when the symphony conductor realizes that he is losing his hearing, Ayres' meeting with the mother of the older physician's dead sweetheart, and the vivid moment with the symphony orchestra.

Storm in Florida blew a young boy out of bed. Bet some mothers would appreciate such storms every morning.

is you. You're going to walk back from that airplane ride."

"They put it so coldly," Marie explained. "So that of you're going to back out, you'll back out then. But I said, 'If opening the parachute depends on me, I'll be back.' Twenty minutes after she left the plane she was."

Since then Marie, who now lives in Long Island City with her daughter, has made parachute leaps in burning storms all over the country. Her average drop is 2,500 feet. Hundreds of thousands of awestruck spectators have watched as her body plunged head first from a plane and plummeted to earth. She calmly counts its somersaulting revolutions. Seven means she has fallen 1,300 feet—and Marie pulls the ripcord. She says the trick in landing is to bend your knees, relax, and go with the parachute.

Has she never been afraid?

Once. "I was fit to be tied on my first sub-way ride," she confessed. "We went down there in that black hole, were locked in a steel train and went hurtling along a mile a minute without knowing where we were going. I don't like to travel in cars either. There's too much danger. Parachutes are safer."

Marie's most spectacular jump was the 24,800-foot leap on Women's Day at the National Air Races in Cleveland on September 2, 1932. The record she claims from the jump is unofficial (though carefully clocked by instruments) because the Federal Aeronautics International, which works world air records, does not yet record parachute jumps.

When she made the leap she fell numbly through the air, lapsed from consciousness after she pulled her ripcord, and "came to" to find herself drifting rapidly toward Lake Erie. Marie wore heavy equipment and she can't swim a stroke. She tugged frantically on her cords in vain.

"Then I prayed, 'Oh, God, help me now!'" she said. "For a minute it was just like I stood still in the sky. Then something seemed to turn me around. I drifted back in the other direction and came down safely on land."
